Dear Administrator:

Researchers at your institution may be interested in receiving funds for studies relating to rosacea, perhaps the least biologically understood of the common dermatological conditions today. The National Rosacea Society (NRS) is seeking applications for grants to support research that may lead to greater scientific knowledge of this chronic and often life-disruptive disorder, now estimated to affect well over 14 million people in the United States alone.

Could you please include the following information in your database of research funding opportunities?

Organization:	National Rosacea Society
Opportunity:	Grants for rosacea research
Application deadline:	September 15, 2008
Eligibility:	Any researcher associated with an accredited educational institution
Funding available:	Typically $10,000-$25,000 for one year, but may be higher in special cases
Contact person:	Lori Natale
Address:	800 S. Northwest Highway Suite 200 Barrington, IL 60010
Phone:	(847) 382-8971
Fax:	(847) 382-5567
E-mail:	nrosacea@aol.com
Web site:	www.rosacea.org/grants/

We appreciate your support and hope the NRS may be able to make a significant contribution to your institution's research funding in 2008.

Sincerely,
